...ATTACK.

...er for November
...n. Dr. Henry, of
B. Mason, is amply
...plet published by him
...for the Defense of
...In these letters Mr.
...ason has admirably exposed
...first is upon the subject treated
...he article, and in the second upon
...ct to... ...ent reproduces them in a con-
...densed ... that our readers who do not have to see the periodical in which they appear, may be enabled to employ them. As a matter of fact, any who may have been misguided by "Copperhead" fallacies, Professor Henry's pamphlet is the one generally taken by that faction, and we shall therefore speak of Mr. Mason's and the doctrines of that party rather than to his individual followers. Mr. Henry in his work undertakes to treat the subject in a calm and dispassionate manner, and mainly in his foregoing letters he has done so. He considers the Government and apparently is sympathy with the cause of the Union to be loyal, and ... ...reflects their claim in a remarkable manner. Loyalty with them is fidelity to the Constitution, and that sovereignty in the will of the people—that is, in the majority, if accomplished peaceably and they propose, therefore, to appeal directly to the sovereign for the purpose of having it ... ...to exercise that portion of the sovereign power which, therein, is taken out of the hands of the people. Here is the fallacy of the "Copperhead" plea, which Mr. Henry thus exposes:

> A portion of the sovereign power belonging to you is taken from you and exercised by the Government of which you are a part. Resist your own sovereign! Resist yourself! Resist—and the Government will be compelled to resist you, and the Constitution will be violated, and therefore supported, if you are to exercise it in opposition to the Government. Is this the doctrine that we are to preach? Shall such be our political creed? Why, yes! Again we say that such indeed must be the doctrine of the Democratic party, if it would oppose the action of the authorities constituted by the Constitution and laws for the exercise of very much of a power, some may say, with those to whom the Constitution and laws are hateful, because of their having been created by him it they, because of their having been created by him it they, because of their having been created by him it they

Speech of Jeff. Davis at Meridian.

The Meridian Register has the following account of the speech of Jefferson Davis during his visit to Meridian:

Mr. Davis said that the matter caused the interest of the local citizens in the line that it would otherwise have taken. Intimating that there was a better route than that. Some time ago he was in Montgomery. Then the negro citizens were beginning to have the right of suffrage conferred upon them, and he was asked to, and did speak about the matter. He then expressed the same views he now entertained, that the negro was not fitted for the exercise of the right of suffrage, and that the policy pursued by making him the arbiter of cause of difference between the white man and the black would be productive of evil to both.

Since the battle was abandoned, Royal street was built up, and the Bayou Road, Esplanade avenue, and about the Bayou Gentilly, the Bayou St. John, and the Metairie Ridge, and the lake shore, and the Bayou Metairie, and along the banks of the Mississippi, and the Bayou Gentilly, and the Bayou St. John, and about the cemeteries, and addressed the soldiers and citizens in a few words.

He complimented the gentlemen who had addressed him for all he deemed them for all he deemed them so far as the fact—but my cause was not theirs. Their cause was the cause of the whole people, and not the cause of the great body of Mississippians, Louisiana, and Georgia, and not only in this, and through them to the whole country, but he should attend, to encouraged meetings, and he should attend, to encouraged meetings, and he should attend, to encouraged meetings, and
